Well, if they can be made to laugh at such a time, by the convulsive movements of the glottis the air is held in the lung and forces the folds fo open and the alveola are cleared while the case is cured by gaiety. Bronchial Catarrh. Laughter is indeed a stimulus for the whole economy and it gives little shocks to the chest that are exceedingly useful in bronchitis with catarrh. Dr. Dennis Prudent Roy in old times knew this, and made his bronchial patients laugh so that they threw off the catarrh from the lungs and were cured. Brain Fever. During the time that Henry IV was beating back the Duke of Angouleme, who was following and harassing his army, he was taken with cerebral fever and was on the point of death; his father confessor was brought, with a number of doctors, and they declared that he must be must be made to laugh and be gay to cure him. History relates that the secretary of the king and his attendant with the captains of the royal guard undertook to make him laugh. They came to his bedside all covered with a white dress and a red hat with cock s feathers in it, and looking veryridiculous they took to knocking one another s hats off, while bursting with fun. On seeing this burlesque scene, the king laughed so that he...
