After a preliminary education at Westminster, and fourteen unprofitable months at Magdalen College, Oxford, a whim to join the Roman church led to his banishment to Lausanne, where he spent five years, and acquired a mastery of the French language, formed his taste for literary expression, and settled his religious doubts in a profound scepticism. He served some years in the militia, and was a member of parliament. It was in 1764, while musing amidst the ruins of the Capitol of Rome, that the idea of writing The Decline and Fall of the city first started into his mind. The vast work was completed in 1787. A Study in Literature, written in French, and his Miscellaneous Works, published after his death, which include The Memoirs of his Life and Writings, complete the list of his literary labours. He died of dropsy on January 16, 1794. The portion of the work which is epitomized here covers the period from the reign of Commodus to the era of Charlemagne, and includes the famous portion of the work dealing with the growth of the Christian church.
